MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

North Pittsburgh Corvette Club members

I hope everyone is having a great Vette season so far. As for myself I was very happy to see so many members out at our two events in April. Looks like all that attended enjoyed the Auto Cross which there are more to come.

The Quaker Steak Cruise was a big success with over two hundred Vettes to look over including some fine NPCC vehicles. Be sure to pay attention to the calendar of events for there are many upcoming shows and cruises to pick from. Hope to see you all at the May meeting at Hardwood Café on the 15th.

Thanks Rob

YOU CAN FIND CORVETTE ENGINES IN ALL SORTS OF PLACES

Some of the greatest cars in history were the product of an Anglo-American alliance. The legendary Shelby Cobra that terrorized race tracks in the '60s married a swoopy lightweight English AC body with a family of thundering Ford V8s. In the '90s an inverse relationship brought us the King of the Hill ZR-1 with a high-tech Lotus-designed V8 sending power to the rear tires of the handling phenom that was the C4 Corvette.

The Wisconsin madmen known as the Ringbrothers have just pieced together the next chapter in this famed transatlantic English-speaking lineage. Unlike the factory specials above, their custom build takes a unique path to US/UK unification that wonderfully blurs all of the lines between the British aristocracy, working-class America, quarter-mile slaying hot rod, elegant grand tourer, old, and new.

The Ring Bros. took the blank canvas of a stately 1969 Rolls Royce Silver Cloud II and updated it to shame any modern AMG 'Benz S-Class. For the Dudley Moore's of the world, riding around in the back seat, everything has been richly reupholstered and refinished, complete with a lookalike "Starlight" ceiling à la modern Rolls'. It's all quite stunning, but the real fun was saved for Bitterman, the chauffeur. When the boss is in a hurry, and especially after he's been dropped at his destination, the driver has command over a marvel of contemporary engine design in the Supercharged 6.2L LT4 V8 of C7 Corvette Z06 fame, complete with a custom set of Rolls Royce valve covers because it's the fine details where the best craftsmen separate themselves from the pack.

Speaking of separating from the pack, the Ringbrothers shot an enjoyable video to show off what their creation is capable of! In the clip, a pair of high-class types let their butlers duke it out in a straight-line bet over fancy mustard. Lined up next to the Small Block-infused slice of the upper crust is the twin-turbo V12 statement piece of a 2023 Phantom. The new Rolls may start at half of a million greenbacks, but as the race starts, it's immediately apparent that it's no match for the classic with the heart of the Big Nasty. As the ultimate luxobarges pull away, the heart of the Big Nasty helps the classic earn the "Cloud" portion of its name as American thunder gives way to tire smoke, then a wall of supercharger whine, and blurred vision.

2024 E-RAY IS BACK AT INDY

The quickest Corvette ever to be produced, the 2024 Corvette E-Ray, has been named as the official pace car for the 108th running of the Indianapolis 500 on Sunday, May 26th. The Indianapolis Motor Speedway made the announcement this morning and shared these photos of Chevy's first performance hybrid dressed in its pace car livery.

With the E-Ray, there are a lot of "firsts" being mentioned. It's the first ever electrified Corvette via its All-Wheel Drive (eAWD) capability as it was designed for year-round performance, and it's the first hybrid to lead the pack of IndyCar racers to the green flag and the start of the Indy 500 race.

The E-Ray features the award-winning 6.2-liter 495-hp LT2 V8 engine in the rear of the car while the front wheels are powered by the 160-hp electric motor. An array of batteries measuring 1.9kw resides in the Corvette E-Ray's central tunnel and they rapidly recharge primarily through braking to power the front motor. Together, the Corvette E-Ray offers 655-hp combined!

We are proud to announce the E-Ray, which is the first electrified and quickest production Corvette ever, will be pacing the 108th Running of the Indianapolis 500," said Scott Bell, global Chevrolet vice president. "As we often say, Chevrolet and INDYCAR share the same spirit of competition and performance-oriented, cutting-edge technology, making E-Ray the perfect fit to pace this year's race."

As for the official pace livery, the E-Ray starts out as an Arctic White 3LZ Coupe with Natural interior, and it's wearing the light-weight visible Carbon Fiber wheels with its standard Michelin all-season performance tires. The E-Ray features the Indy 500 graphics on the doors, with the words "Official Pace Car" appearing under the E-Ray badge just in front of the rear tires while a race graphic appears just behind the tires. The iconic "flying wheel" graphic is placed on the rear quarter panels and there is also a large "E-RAY" graphic on the hood in Red and White and it's trimmed with what looks to be a beige color with a black outline.
